Option one is to purchase three apparatuses at one time for the total cost of $2.7 million spread over a twenty-year loan. Option one would have an average annual payment of $150,000 to $165,000. Option two is to purchase one apparatus now and then purchase another in seven years and purchase the last replacement within another seven years. Chief Haynes reported this option would create unmanageable annual payments. Option three is to purchase one apparatus now and purchase two at one time in the future which again would create unmanageable annual payments.
